In the past thirteen years there have been eleven such pilgrimages, known as Innersearch Travel/Study Programs. This year's 1981 India Odyssey is the twelfth such program and is very much a tirthayatrai, a traditional pilgrim's tour of the sacred temples of Saivism. In addition to temple worship, the pilgrims enjoy special classes and talks from Gurudeva and the two swamis travelling with him. Along their route, many local religious societies have arranged lecture programs and receptions for Gurudeva.

The thirty-five day program begins with a day each in Honolulu and Hong Kong enroute to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, where three days are spent attending the major temples. Next they travel to Sri Lanka, where they spend three days in Colombo, four in Anuradhapura and Tiruketisvaram, and five days in the Jaffna area. Then they fly to Trivandrum, South India where they begin a full twelve-day pilgrimage through the major temples of Tamil Nadu, ending with a four-day stay in Madras. The final three days return them to America via Singapore to Honolulu.
